THE Y. M. C. A.

Permanently Organized and Ready to Go to Work.

A meeting of those who have signified their intention of becoming members of the Young Men's Christian Association was held in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian Church on Monday evening. The meeting was opened by Mr. Rosevear, State Secretary, and after devotional exercises, Mr. R. L. Green was made chairman and Mr. M. R. Todd, Secretary. A complete and comprehensive statement of the present condition of the organization was made by Mr. E. W. Hines, who has been the temporary secretary for some months, after which a constitution similar to that governing the associations in other towns of the State was adopted. Upon motion, the chair appointed a committee composed of Rev. R. L. McCready, Rev. J. McClusky Blayney, D. D., and Major H. S. Hale to select a Board of Directors, who retired and after deliberation reported the following as said board: Col. Chas. E. Hoge, Frank Chinn, R. K. McClure, Major H. S. Hale, J. W. Gayle, Dr. Jacob S. Coleman, Edward W. Hines, George L. Payne, Dr. U. V. Williams, Jas. H. Polsgrove, Robert L. Green, Walter G. Chapman, Frank V. Gray, Gen. D. W. Lindsey and Ed. C. Drane. State Secretary Rosevear then outlined the work and made suggestions in regard to the organization, and the meeting adjourned.

The board of directors held a meeting in the directors room of the State National Bank Tuesday evening, at which Col. Chas. E. Hoge was elected President; Mr. E. W. Hines, Vice President; Mr. Walter G. Chapman, Corresponding Secretary, and Mr. Ed. C. Drane, Treasurer. It was determined to invite Mr. Worth, of Pennsylvania, to come here and look over the field with a view of becoming the Permanent Secretary. The selection of rooms was postponed until after the arrival of Mr. Worth.

Settled in Full.

The insurance companies represented by Mr. C. F. Exum, which carried the risks on the buildings in South Frankfort recently destroyed by fire, have made settlements as follows: The National of Hartford paid to Messrs. Fincel Bros. $3,000—the full amount of their policy; the Agricultural of New York paid to Mrs. Kate Ford $500, the amount of the policy she held on the old Reddish property, and the Phoenix of Hartford paid Mr. George W. Miller $250 loss on his tools destroyed.

A Frankfort Boy Promoted.

The retirement of Rear Admiral Meade opened the way for promotions in the Navy all along the line, and a former Frankfort boy is among the fortunate ones, Lieutenant Commander Chapman C. Todd being promoted to Commander. For some time he has been ordnance officer at Norfolk, Virginia, making his home at old Fort Norfolk and having an office at the Navy Yard in Portsmouth. His berth has been a pleasant one but he will now, in all probability, be assigned to other duty. Commander Todd is a son of the late Captain Harry I. Todd and a brother of Mrs. S. B. Holmes, of this city. He entered the Navy as a cadet at Annapolis in 1863, too late to see service during the war, but has made a splendid officer since then. His friend here at his old home will be glad to hear of his promotion.

THE FISCAL COURT.

Fixes the Tax Rate and Transacts Other Business.

The Fiscal Court met in adjourned session at the Court House on Monday and fixed the tax rate for this year as follows: For general revenue 35 cents, Kentucky Midland Railway Fund 15 cents and for the Sinking Fund 5 cents, making a total of 55 cents on the $100, being 1 1/2 cents less than the levy of last year.

The following amounts were appropriated to turnpikes: To the Pleasant Grove and Polsgrove Landing Turnpike $3,500; to the Elmville and Minor's Branch Turnpike, $500, and to the Forks of Elkhorn and Rocky Branch Turnpike $500.

A proposition to allow the Frankfort Water Company to place another pipe across the St. Clair street bridge was discussed and referred to a committee to draw up a suitable contract.

The court then adjourned until Wednesday.

At the meeting on Wednesday it was determined to take no further action in relation to the matter of tendering the use of the bridge to the Water Company for an additional pipe, as the company had not asked for the privilege.

The motion passed at a recent meeting to abolish the office of County Treasurer was rescinded and Treasurer Marshall will hold on until his successor is elected and qualified.

The County Judge and County Attorney were constituted a committee with power to act, to make some much-needed repairs to the second story of the Court House.

An allowance of $500 was made for the Almshouse.

Attention, Sir Knights.

There will be a called meeting of Frankfort Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, on Tuesday evening next, May 28th, at the Asylum in the Yeoman building, opposite the Court House, at 8:30 o'clock, for the conference of the Templar orders. Visiting Sir Knights are courteously invited and the presence of every member of the Commandery earnestly requested. By order of

V. L. CLARK,
Eminent Commander.

Attest:
BEN T. FARMER, Recorder.

IMPROVING AND OVERHAULING

The Southern Presbyterian Church Undergoing Repairs.

The ladies of the Southern Presbyterian Church are having some handsome improvements made upon their church edifice on Third street. The old carpet and pews have been removed, the interior and exterior of the building will be neatly painted, the interior newly papered, a new carpet put down and new pews of the most approved modern pattern will be put in. When all the improvements are made it will look like an entirely new church. In consequence of the repairs being made there will be no services at the church tomorrow.

Too Many Streets of the Same Name.

For years we have had Main street on the North Side and Main street on the South Side, and now since we have annexed Bellepoint we have Main street on the West Side. This causes confusion and some of the names should be changed. Why can not our city fathers change the name of Main street on the South Side to Berry Avenue, in honor of the largest property holder living on it, or Anderson street, as the street car tracks have now diverted a large portion of the travel to and from Anderson county over it. It is the widest and is also susceptible of being made one of the prettiest streets in the city and should have a different name.

Torpedo on the Track.

Considerable excitement was occasioned by a loud explosion Tuesday night about 9:30 just after an electric car had turned the corner of St. Clair and Main streets. The motorman stopped his car and got down to examine it, thinking some portion of the motor had let go, and quite a large crowd gathered in a few moments. The trouble was caused by some mischievous boy placing a fulminating cap on the rail and when the truck struck it the explosion occurred.

World's Columbian Exposition

Will be of value to the world by illustrating the improvements in the mechanical arts and eminent physicians will tell you that the progress of medicinal agents has been of equal importance, and as a strengthening laxative that Syrup of Figs is far in advance of all others.

At It Again.

Mr. George W. Miller, who was burned out by the recent fire which destroyed the Fincel block, has re-opened his tin shop in one of the rooms in the Herndon block on Second street.

DECORATION DAY.

The Arrangements Made for a Large Parade and the Programme Prepared.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the observance of Decoration Day, Thursday next, May 30th, held a meeting on Wednesday evening, selected Judge W. H. Sneed as Chief Marshal and adopted the following PROGRAM OF PARADE, AND ORDER OF PROCESSION.

The procession will be formed on Wapping street at 3 o'clock p. m., Thursday, May 30, in the following order, with its right resting on Wilkinson street, viz:

1. W. H. Sneed, Chief Marshal.
2. Frankfort Cornet Band.
3. McCreary Guards.
4. German Benevolent Society.
5. Junior O. U. A. M., which will constitute the first division, and will be in charge of W. S. Dehoney, Deputy Marshal.
6. Drum Corps.
7. Knights of Pythias.
8. Odd Fellows, No. 6.
9. Y. M. I. Society.
10. Odd Fellows, No. 28, will constitute the second division, and will be in charge of W. B. Bridgeford, Deputy Marshal.
11. A. G. Bacon Post, G. A. R.
12. Sons of Veterans.
13. Woman's Relief Corps.
14. Citizens on Foot.
15. Little girls representing 44 States.
16. Orator of the day.
17. Citizens in carriages, will constitute the third division, and will be in charge of D. Weisiger Lindsey, Jr.

The line of march will be west on Wapping to Wilkinson, north to Main and on Main to cemetery, halting in front of the State monument, when the several societies will proceed to such place as they may each select and there engage in such ceremonies as they may respectively desire, after which the bodies will assemble upon the plot surrounding the State Monument where the orator of the day will deliver his address and the little girls will decorate the graves with flowers. The procession will then reform and march to the continuation of Main street down the same to Wilkinson, thence south on Wilkinson to Wapping, thence east to Custom House, where the procession will disband.

The Request.

Please write me a poem as a contribution to my paper for the Literary Club in our town. FLORENCE S.

THE ANSWER.

A poem, my dear, do you know what you ask?
And what, do you think, could inspire such a task?
The poets are creatures who sing of the trees;
Of May, with its verdure and soon-laden trees;
Of birds, as they curvet their happy note;
The wiles of spring-time, those splitting each throat.

Why, poets no hint of a discord must bear;
'Mid harmony only their muse will appear;
And when, do you think, the moments are mine
To wander in fancy or realize no dream?
Demands most prosaic, from morning till night,
The wings of my fancy elude in each flight.

Now heads are to comb and faces to wash,
With many a protest, proceedings to quash—
Refectory tangles, by dint of much care,
Give place to smooth braids, or to ringlets more fair.

But should inharmonious the process attend—
Not such as with fanesque poise will bend.
With beatings to fasten and buckles to snap
The feelings are fretted as if with a rasp.

With healing each parent of yesterday's rent
The music-making moments of morning are spent.
Till five little girls, all blooming and clean,
Appear on the vision a beauteous scene.

Ah! now may the poet his numbers invoke—
Of theme more inspiring no poem o'er spoke
Than childhood, all innocence, beauty and mirth—
No theme more enchanting affords the broad earth.

My fingers mount the empyrean pond,
While smiles cluster about in a cloud.
Like rainbows all sparkling in morning's bright dew;
Like pauses, with semblance of thought peeping through.

Like daisies of woodland the meadows among
Whose praises one "Robbie" has long ago sung;
Like blossoms of apple—Oh, dear! what is that?
Poor Pegasus, now all in terror, falls flat.

And, still, now I think, it is probably naught
But some hapless victim that boy of mine's caught.
His sisters had caused me awhile to forget
The task o'er me now so dreadfully waiting me yet—
Why, boy! think! what have you ever ridged your pen!

Oh! yes; I dare say 'twas some luckless mischance.
With scissars, and thimbles, and needles and thread
Again must I struggle, my pencil instead—
The worst is not yet, I'd forgotten to say.
That boy number two in his crib's stowed away;
Perhaps ere a stich in this garment is sown,
Some vast most imperative he will make known.

Soon school time comes on with its bustle and noise,
Its bores of mischievous maidens and boys.
And, pray, who could then a poor stanza indite?
Why, Tenyson's self, when a poem he'd write.
Himself in four walls all alone must immerse
From noise and intrusion there wholly secure.

So, Florence, my dear, you see it were vain
For me to attempt a poetical strain.
I wish I had leisure—but hold! let me see—
I've read it all over, and sure as can be
It scans and it rhymes from beginning to close—
That passes for poetry all the world knows.

A secret I've learned which to you I'll impart,
I'm sure you'll esteem it, and learn it by heart.
The lives of us women are burdened with cares;
But, bearing these burdens, we oft are unaware
To poetry change the most commonplace things.
If each will but work while the cheerfulness sings.

Fine Berries.

Mr. George M. Brock, of the Forks of Elkhorn neighborhood, who always raises the finest and sweetest strawberries, is again in the market with the best lot of berries we have seen this season. If you want good ones look out for his wagon.

Gone to Harrogate.

Mr. John T. Gray, formerly of this city, has taken charge of Harrogate Inn, at Harrogate, Tennessee, and will manage it during the season. It is an ideal summer resort in the Cumberland mountains, with romantic drives over the macadamized roads, mammoth caves, mineral springs in the vicinity—pure mountain atmosphere and the healthful altitude. Is near Cumberland Gap and in easy reach by railroad. Mr. Gray should not be forgotten by his old friends here who propose to take a summer outing.

Benson Valley.

Plenty of rain at present.

Mr. Ernest Collins, of Choateville, assisted Miss Annie Sheets to meeting at Mt. Zion Church Sunday.

Miss Tip Conway, of Frankfort, is visiting her cousin, Miss Mattie Conway, this week.

A Sunday-school is being carried on at Choateville school-house. Mr. Staten, of Frankfort, Superintendent. Sunday-school at Benson Church, every Sunday evening at three o'clock. L. P. Hulett, Superintendent.

If reports be true, there will be a wedding in the near future that will leave many a heart aching and many tears will be shed. Grieve not, Harry, you have my heartfelt sympathy.

Our old friend, Mr. Jim Pence, was on Benson Sunday last. Don't worry yourself too much, Jim, just get a box of two-lip salve.

Mr. Jim Hulett was returning home Wednesday when his horse became frightened at a buggy standing by the roadside. Mr. Hulett seeing his danger, jumped out to save himself and fell when the horse and buggy ran over him, bruising him up badly but no bones were broken.

Mr. Harry Conway is engaged in business on a steamboat and has to reside away from home.

We notice, with pleasure, that old Blue Jay has been resurrected and his sonnets are grandiloquent—but we think

For him to be a poet, is as impossible as for a sheep to be a goat.

The Court of Claims met Monday to consider and make appropriations to turnpikes, and, strange to relate, there was not a member of the board of managers of the Rock Haven picnic present. Truly, they are a fine body of business men, with plenty of snap. &c. They should at their next invocation vote each of themselves a leather medal. The citizens along the Benson Valley feel mighty proud of them, and justly so.

A Terrible Visitant.

Pain is always a terrible visitant, and often domiciles itself with one for life. This affliction is preventable in cases of rheumatism by timely resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks the encroachments of this obnoxious and dangerous malady at the outset. The term "dangerous" is used advisedly, for rheumatism is always liable to attack the vital organs and terminate life. No medicine is more conclusive and concurrent than that of Hostetter's Bitters in this disease. Persons liable to a relapse of rheumatism, and who are exposed to draughts, should use the Bitters as a preventive of ill effects. Malaria, dyspepsia, liver and kidney trouble, nervousness and debility are also among the ailments to which this popular medicine is adapted. For the infirmities, soreness and stiffness of the aged it is highly beneficial.

LOUISVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

FURNISHED BY GLOVER & DURRETT, LOUISVILLE TOBACCO WAREHOUSE.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 3,232 hhds., with receipts for the same period of 2,507 hhds. Sales on our market since January last amount to 30,113 hhds. Sales of the crop of 1894 on our market to date amount to 28,299 hhds.

Sales on our market this week embraced 2,271 hhds. 1894 crop burley and we are pleased to report that we have had a very firm and active market throughout the week. The high range of prices which have been current for the good to fine grades of burley for some weeks past being fully sustained, while there has been some advance in prices for the medium grades, both of the red and bright character, so that all grades considered, our market this week has been stronger than at any time since the opening of the year. We made frequent sales this week of good burley at prices ranging from $12 to $13 with occasional hhds. selling from $13 to $20. In some localities a fair start has been made in putting the crop on the hill, but complaints from destruction by cut worms, continue to be quite general.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco 1894 crop:
Trash (dark or damaged) tobacco $1 50 @ $2 75
Common Colory trash 3 00 @ 3 75
Medium to good colory trash 3 75 @ 4 50
Common lugs not colory 2 50 @ 3 00
Common Colory lugs 4 00 @ 5 00
Medium to good colory lugs 5 50 @ 8 50
Common to medium leaf 6 00 @ 10 00
Medium to good leaf 10 00 @ 15 00
Good to fine leaf 15 00 @ 18 00
Select or wrappery 18 00 @ 23 00

Deafness Can't Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that is cured by using Dr. Price's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

It is the only train for Jersey City Coast resorts, which are reached by the F. F. V. at dinner time instead of in the evening. FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT

Entered at the post-office at Frankfort, Kentucky, as second-class matter.

GEO. A. LEWIS, Editor and Pub.

FRANKFORT, MAY 25, 1896.

A GOOD OPENING

For Capitalists to Take Hold of a Manufacturing Establishment.

There is a first-class chance right here for a joint stock company to take hold of a plant already established, and with which a good paying business can be done from the start. The Capital City Chair Company went into the hands of a receiver simply because the gentlemen who composed the company did not have capital sufficient to run it. They put in all the latest improved machinery and were turning out a first-class chair, for which they found ready sale at a good profit, but not having the ready money to keep going with were compelled to surrender. By putting into this enterprise $25,000 or $30,000 it can be made to pay a big profit to those who will take hold of it. Timber for the manufacture of chairs can be procured right here cheaper than most anywhere else, the buildings and machinery can be purchased cheap, and labor with experience in the business can be had here at home, so that there is a splendid opportunity for some public spirited citizens to set a manufacturing establishment on its feet which will give employment to at least one hundred hands, turn out a good selling product and pay good interest on the investment. Now will our monied men let this enterprise go away from us, as they have all other manufacturing interests in the past, or will they take hold with a vim and help to make Frankfort what she ought to be, a live manufacturing town?

The Park on Paper.

Mr. D. M. Woodson, the civil engineer, has made a plat of the proposed park, bounded by Bridge street and the city school property, Second street and the river, showing what a beautiful spot it can be made without the expenditure of such a large sum of money. If some of those who oppose the project will go and look at the plat and see what a vast improvement it will be over the unsightly old sinkhole, with its border of half-burned and dilapidated buildings, they may be inclined to change their minds. The question of cost seems to be the great obstacle in the way of the enterprise going through—as it has been and always will be in the way of every move ment in the line of progress in this city—but if we go at the matter by degrees, only spending a small amount each year, we will have a park after awhile that will be an ornament to the city without the tax-payers feeling the burden. The principal thing now is to acquire the property and when that is done the improvements can be made afterwards. The Women's Club has taken up the fight and will endeavor to get the City Council to take some action in regard to it. If the ladies are successful in this they will be sure to devise some way to get the ground improved also after it is purchased.

MANUAL TRAINING.

An Essential Element in Education.

How it was possible for educators all along the line of human development to ignore the hand in their efforts to secure a well-rounded development of the pupil is quite unaccountable, unless it be accounted for by the tenacity with which tradition grasps and re strains its devotee from wandering into what are regarded to be forbidden paths.

It has been left for the last quarter of the nineteenth century to discover the hand of the child and to use it in connection with the eye to secure mental culture.

Immediately after freeing himself from the shackles of tradition which held him in abject servitude, the recognition of the hand by the teacher, as means of development, was made manifest by the introduction of hand-work based upon educational principles. The immediate results attending this effort of the teacher were, increased interest in and attention to other studies on the part of the pupil, a more cheerful moral support of the schools by parents, and a hearty commendation rather than an adverse criticism from the practical element of the community, and from those in whose charge the interests of the public schools are committed.

The State Board of Education of Florida says of Manual training: "We are deeply impressed with the fact that the large majority of the children in attendance upon the public schools are the children of the poorer people and will fill the large and important classes of farmers, workmen, mechanics and artisans of the State, and that to impart to them only the knowledge to be derived from school books, excellent and necessary as it is, will but illy equip them for the sphere of life to which, in Providence and circumstances, they are very sure to be called. We are still more impressed with the necessity of imparting to them some knowledge of useful tools so that a taste may be cultivated for those very useful and important vocations in life, and to impress them with a true and proper conception of the honor and dignity of labor.

County Superintendents and Boards of Public Instruction are urgently and specially called upon to give their earnest attention to this very important feature of school work and instruction."

Another Frankfort Boy Heard From.

The following is from a Tower, Minnesota, paper. Rev. Mr. Bull is a son of Mr. S. C. Bull, of this city:

The Rev. E. H. Bull, who is under call to the Presbyterian church here and at Ely, graduated at McCormick Seminary last week and will enter upon his pastoral next Sunday, preaching morning and evening. He is well and favorably known in Duluth Presbytery, having received license from it a year ago and preached at Willow River and Rutledge during last summer. Mr. Bull is the third graduate of McCormick received by Duluth Presbytery within a year, the others being Rev. Samuel Sample, of Glen Avon, and Rev. Mr. Keithly, of West Duluth. They have proved a great strength to the cause of Presbyterianism in this district and it is expected Mr. Bull will be equally helpful. The young pastor hails from Kentucky and is a relative of Dr. T. H. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian Church of Duluth. It is expected Mr. Bull will be ordained and installed early in June, when several ministers and elders will be here and when it is expected a popular meeting will be held and a formal reception given to the young pastor at the Versailles hotel.

Surveying the Route.

A corps of engineers are busily engaged surveying the route of the extension of the railroad from Shelbyville to a point on the main line of the L. & N. Railroad near Hatton or Bagdad, which when completed will shorten the distance between here and Louisville some thirteen miles. The track from Shelbyville to Anchorage will also be straightened and several sharp curves will be gotten rid of. The L. & N. Company has already placed an order with the Carnegie Steel Company for sufficient rails of the heaviest make to lay the entire track, from the point where the new road will tap the main stem to Anchorage.

THE CITY OF CAIRO

As Seen Through Mr. Darsie's Eyes.

Rev. George Darsie, after traveling in Egypt for weeks, has turned his face homeward. Yesterday he left Piræus by steamer for Athens, where he arrives to-day and will remain until Wednesday seeing the sights, when he will take a steamer for Constantinople. The following letter, written from Cairo, is descriptive of that city, which he styles

THE METROPOLIS OF EGYPT.

Of course I mean Cairo, and after a ten days' sojourn therein I am very willing to concede the adjective and say, Grand Cairo. Not only Egypt's metropolis but Africa's as well, it has close upon half a million inhabitants and ranks the second city of the Ottoman Empire. Seven thousand tourists come hither every year, and the half of them go no further, thinking, I suppose, that when they have seen the Delta and Cairo, they have seen Egypt. To speak accurately they have seen about half of Egypt, the easiest and perhaps the pleasantest half to see. But no one can appreciate this half like those who have first seen the other half. A trip up the Nile straightens out many things in and about Cairo that else were confusing to the tourist.

The first thing that strikes you on entering the city is the goodly size of the buildings. They are mostly of light-colored stone and loom up in imposing proportions. Arriving on a hot day, as we did, you are surprised at the delicious coolness of your hotel and you soon discover that the secret lies in thick walls, high ceilings and large piazzas. On the street we had found a temperature of 92 degrees, but within the New Hotel we revelled in a temperature of 72 degrees. It was a most agreeable change from the cramped quarters of a Nile steamer to its spacious apartments. The most distinctly American thing we found at the New was ice water, the first we had seen in Egypt. The New fronts on the quarter known as "The Ezbekeh," the finest part of the city, and connects with the street by a series of large, covered porches that stand high above it and give you the best view of the street life to be found in Cairo.

We really did not need to go about in order to see the sights. The sights all passed by us as we sat under the canopies of our roomy front porch. There is the snake charmer showing off his live cobras and crocodiles. There are the vendors of canes, roses, beads, fly brushes and deer only knows what all. There goes the water-seller, clanking two bowls together with the fingers of one hand, and making them sound exactly like a bell. Yonder passes the khedive in his carriage. Here comes a pair of fleet Nubian runners, gaily attired in loose white garments, but with legs bare from the knee down. Each has a long staff in his hand, and with a peculiar cry of warning, they clear the way before the rich-looking turn-out that is rapidly advancing. They are the sais, the most stylish and the most characteristic street sight in Cairo. The sidewalk never lacks a supply of beggars, who hold up the stub of an arm, or point at sightless eyes, and appeal in pleading tones for charity. Barefooted women with black veils from their eyes down, and the inevitable cylinder of brass over the nose, pass continually. Donkey-boys from the curbstone with saddled donkeys stand ready to trot you round the city. White turbans and red tarbooshes, accompanied by black, blue, green and white robes, extending to the heels, are the dress of full ninetenths of all the passers-by.

But there are a few things that will not come to your hotel, and these you feel constrained to go and see. One of the most important is the Bazaars. You skirt the octagonal public garden across the way, round a corner or two, and enter a narrow street, famous for shops and shoppers, known as the Mooskee. After a quarter of a mile or so upon it, you turn into a series of alleys which cross each other at intervals, and are so narrow in places that with outstretched arms you can reach from wall to wall. A motley crowd of men, women and children, all in oriental dress, fill and blockade them. Square recesses in their sides, with goods piled on shelves, and their owners squatting, coss-legged in the center of the floor, these are the bazaars. There are miles of them. They sell everything under the sun and for pretty much every price. You never enter, but stand in the alley and dicker for what you want. Dicker is the right word. If you paid the price originally asked for an article, the seller would fall in a fainting fit. He first asks three prices, expecting you to dicker. And all you need to do is to offer the price you will pay and stick to it. He will come to it by easy stages in no time. Nowhere in Cairo, even in the modern and European shops, are prices fixed. Nothing in the bazaars is more interesting than the silversmith's quarter. They are generally Copts, and you see them plying their art and manufacturing their articles on both sides as you pass along. They know how to reproduce the most ancient styles of Egyptian jewelry, even the kind the Israelites despoiled their oppressors of the night of the Exodus. But your enjoyment of the bazaars is at times marred by the necessity of passing a loaded camel, whose burden reaches out on either side almost to the walls of the narrow alley, or of being rubbed against by strings of donkeys or a succession of stooping goat-skin water-carriers, who thread their way through the dense and noisy throng. But we have our genial and competent dragoman, Ibrahim Ismail, along, and he acts as a guide, interpreter, and smooths our path at every point and aids in our purchases. No one can properly see Cairo without a morning or two in the bazaars.

Another thing that will not come to you is the Mosques. There are something like five hundred of them, and their tall and graceful minarets look down upon you from all parts of the city and lend charm to every general view you get of it. I wish church steeples were half as handsome. The oldest Mosque in Cairo is that of Sultan Hassan, built 400 years ago, within which the dust of the Sultan sleeps, and over which towers the highest of all the minarets. The most beautiful mosque is that of Mehmet Ali, whose yellow limestone walls, alabaster pillars, marble floors, blue-tiled crystal auditorium, covered with magnificent Persian rugs, and two needle-like minarets, were a delight on which our eyes simply feasted. Every mosque has one or more kiblas or praying niches, which, of course, always face Mecca, where the pious Moslems gather to perform their elaborate devotions. The remains of the dauntless ruler, Mehmet Ali, still rest in a corner of his mosque, not far from the spot within the citadel where in 1811 he butchered the five hundred Mamelukes in cold blood. Ibrahim showed us some dark places on the walls of the passage-way where the terrible deed was done, which he said were caused by the flowing blood of the unarmed chiefs, and pointed out the very points by where the only survivors of their number who escaped spurred his horse over the fifty foot precipice.

The view of the city and its surrounding objects of interest from this lofty citadel is memorable. Before you and at your feet is Egypt's beautiful metropolis. Beyond sweeps the swift and clouded water of the Nile. Behind are the famous Mokattam hills and their exhaustless quarries of limestone. Far to the left you trace the outlines of the step pyramid at Sakkarah, 20 miles away. Farther down are the pyramids of Dasher, while over there opposite you rise the greatest monuments in Egypt, old Cheops and his scarcely inferior companion-pyramid, Chephren. Beyond all spreads the sandy waste of the Libyan desert. More objects of absorbing interest in a single landscape, it were hard to find.

We visited of course the great Mohammedan University, to which resort thousands of students each year from all parts of the Mohammedan world. It was a great sight, the vast pillared hall with hundreds of classes squatting on mats on the floor, the teacher in the center, receiving instruction, chiefly in the Koran. Something like 20,000 students are yearly enrolled, and go out from these walls to carry and propagate the knowledge of the Moslem faith here received. This University may be reckoned as an element of great power in upholding and spreading that intolerant religion.

And time would fail me to tell of our visit to the Coptic convent where we were shown the crypt in which the Holy Family resided while in Egypt; or of the howling dervishes, the Nilometer, the spot where Moses was found in his "bulrush," as Ibrahim puts it, or of the procession of the holy carpet which set all Cairo agog, and provided one of the most brilliant pageants I ever saw; or of our trip to Helopolis (or On) where Joseph got his wife, and where we found a beautiful obelisk farm; or of our ascent of the great Pyramid and our first glimpse of the Sphinx, and the group of our party taken by a photographer right under the Sphinx nose (if it had one) with Cheops in the background; or of a dozen other things, each of which would of itself suffice for an entire letter. But I must content myself with this mere allusion and finish this letter by referring briefly to the Museum of Egyptian Antiquities, by all odds the noblest collection of its kind in the world. Five or six years ago it was removed from Bouak to the Palace of Ghizeh, on the opposite side of the river, which though a building that cost $24,000,000, is not fire-proof. It yet needs a new and perfectly safe building within the city, and is soon to have it.

Here you find the royal mummies that came from the Tombs of the Kings at Thebes, sleeping away in their coffins just as peacefully as if still in their own chosen and rock-hewn sepulchers in the Libyan mountains. No flush of anger comes to Sethi's black cheek because the curious eyes of all nations stare at him. And Rameses' big Roman nose doesn't curl a particle at the ceaseless invasion of his privacy. Nor does Tutmes seem to feel it any indignity whatever that the most vulgar tongues make free and easy remarks about his personal appearance. If there are human mummies here, so are there cat mummies and dog mummies and monkey mummies and goat mummies and ibis mummies and crocodile mummies and rabbit mummies and fish mummies, and I don't know how many other kinds. Look at them and wonder all you please.

I confess that nothing held me longer than the sculptured head of Queen Tai, which is said to have exerted an influence on the eighteenth dynasty which kept Israel in royal favor and postponed by a hundred years or so the day of Israel's oppression. Her beautiful face as it looked down from its lofty place in the wall seemed to me eminently fitted to be an instrument of God in carrying out his great designs. One of the most life-like statues in the museum is that of the Wooden man which was found at Memphis, and is thought to be at least 5,000 years old. In attitude, expression and form it is one of the most striking things I ever saw. A celebrated tablet in the collection is the Tablet of Tanis containing the Decree of Canopus which shares with the Rosetta Stone the honor of having taught scholars how to read their hieroglyphics of Egypt. These are only a few brief mentions in this great exhibit to which the visitor needs to give days and days in order to take it in. But I cannot afford it further space. It is the most interesting spot in Egypt or the world to the Egyptologist. And even to the greenhorn like myself, who aims at the merest smattering of knowledge concerning that most interesting nation of antiquity, it has charms that made the two forenoons I spent in it among the most fascinating experiences of my life.
